

KR Capital is a newly launched multi-billion-dollar asset management firm based in New York City. We are fundamental investors focused on generating differentiated insights to build high conviction views around asymmetric risk-reward outcomes.

We invest behind change, looking for opportunities and inflections at the intersection of bottom-up fundamentals and top-down themes. Our insights are grounded in understanding idiosyncratic business drivers, assessing competitive dynamics, and engaging in respectful, insight-rich dialogue with corporate leadership. We back high-quality companies that can deliver meaningful impact across industries and society, approaching investing with a long-term mindset and a history of building large, concentrated positions held over multi-year horizons.

Our team focuses on best ideas, with global reach across a range of sectors. They bring deep experience from leading asset management firms including Marshall Wace Asset Management, Goldman Sachs Asset Management, Fred Alger Management, Atalan Capital, Jericho Capital, Kodai Capital, Point72 Asset Management, and Citadel. Each investment professional takes full ownership for our positions, industry expertise, and corporate partnerships.

We engage with management to discuss big ideas and long-term value creation — unit economics, capital allocation, and structural growth drivers — rather than short-term market noise. We prioritize direct engagement through headquarters visits, industry conferences, and ongoing dialogue. We value long-term relationships with management and investor relations teams, maintaining a bi-directional flow of industry insights and market perspectives. Through this approach, we seek to be a trusted thought partner for sustainable value creation.

Echoed in words like create, kratos, kraft, and karma, the /kr/ phonetic cluster appears across languages linked to creation and strength